The Advocate

VOL. IV. NO. 46. HUNTINGDON, P.Q., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1886 $1.00 PER YEAR

ASTRONOMY AND METEOROLOGY

BY WALTER H. SMITH, MONTREAL, President Brit. Astr. Ass'n; Author of "Smith's Planetary Charts and Tables"; Author of "Lunar Influence on Vege tation"; Author of "Weather Prophecies"; Astronomer Editor of "The Canadian Almanac."

CALENDAR.

Planetary Aspects 18—sun rises 7.01, sets 4.27—Moon at last quarter, 5.40 afternoon.

Friday, 19—Mercury at greatest elongation, 18° 27' west.

Saturday, 20—Venus in perihelion, 5.30 afternoon.

Sunday, 21—Mercury in perihelion, 5.30 afternoon.

Monday, 22—New moon 1.40, afternoon.

Tuesday, 23—Moon in perigee, 5.30 afternoon.

Wednesday, 24—Moon in apogee, 5.30 afternoon.

Thursday, 25—Moon's ascending node, 5.30 afternoon.

WEATHER FORECAST.

For the week ending Wednesday, Nov. 31 :—Cold, wind and snow. Southeast and rain South—High winds, gusty and squally—Snow, warm, warmer.

Week ending Wednesday, December 1st:—Windy, rainy and more unsettled in the latitude—Generally unsettled with warmer weather—Snow or rain—Cold with rain and fog.

SMITH'S PLANETARY ALMANAC for 1887 is now ready, price 10 cents, or postpaid, 12 cents. Apply to Walter H. Smith, No. 31 Jacobs St. Montreal, or the Advocate office.

ASTRONOMICAL-METEOROLOGICAL-AGRICULTURAL.

ANNUAL SERVICES—SUPPLEMENT AT THE BEGINNER'S ASSEMBLY.

At the meeting on Nov. 5th, President Smith continued his address as follows :

Further investigation led me to frame a rainy, stormy period about the middle of September, 1887 (METEOROLOGICAL week). At the time, Capes, now of Washington, was in Montreal, and from my forecast and his communications relating to weather matters, the Montreal Star "Witness" decided to offer a prize of twenty dollars for the most accurate forecast of the weather of Exhibition week. Many competed, but Professor Stone was the successful guesser, others ranked honorably after, Wiggins came out with the prediction of a storm on the 8th of March following. This threw the universal pauline which would obtain, I partially confirmed, however, more marked one than usual Venus, which I recognize, explained by the fact that "gossamer" was the general verdict, the season had not been disturbing. Another visitor appeared, Mr. Venner, comes out publicly for astronomy, declaring that my forecast had been the most correct and should have taken first prize.

Some time ago, I may consider my self as having left Montreal forth as to the cause of predictive weather science, almost directly

WILD OATS.

DEAR! dear!—but what will we ever do with our Harry?" often exclaimed poor Mrs. Allen, worried and anxious of mother, over a few adventure or a startling piece of mischief on the part of her only son—a—1 brit.

It was a hard question to answer. Harry was pronounced by gypsy, reckless, lawless, and with a freely inextinguishable genius for mischief.

He was not a bad boy—Oh, dear, no! He had a good heart, a frank and affectionate nature, and a general favorite in all that pleasant—nasty neighborhood; but he would bear watching, and so often wanted a guiding rein, yet wherever he did, nobody said to boy could with more exuberance, fearless little fellow, who, bursting like all the rest of the resources of home, roused alert at "Come—come, still, and, in short, had received his fourth summer, had enough of the mischief in him which long clung to him, at "the young class." Never did a more fault letter, for Harry was singularly active and active, with a glorious effective complexion, big black eyes, that shot out strange fire by fits and starts, and dark hair, usually matted, tossed and tumbled about in some wild, artificial way.

Some of the country people, not having studied physiognomy at the Arabs, called him "the little Indian," a name which pleased him well, on account of his love for Indians, and a hint that he somehow sanctioned by the whole family, and so he was called by it.

Harry's pastimes must be in accordance with his startling little visage—such pastimes as would suit the wildness of his character, and also be in keeping with his complexion. He became "a little Indian" at once.

One day the minister called, and he was introduced unto, and his visits were seldom overlooked. All the family adored Master Harry, who, as usual, "came up missing," and was discovered in "the best room," in no humor to him—though, from the fact that he did not love his work in the harvest field and the sun was obliged to shine, and let her hoeing get overlight, and Aunt Mary was compelled to break off from a wonderful magnetic story, and Uncle John to look over the rubber's boots under the windows—all of which was in chamber, and says to her dearest, "Mrs. Smith! I have promised his lady housekeeper on the seat, in the arbor; and he got it—that's a dear!"—and Smith—he says—

Well, as I said, the family all came together at last, and Mrs. Allen tried to forget his misdemeanor, as she felt not to be anxious about the lacking, and Miss Mary tried hard to look grave, to wonder what Matilda said and missed, and to be extremely well acquainted with the rest, to all the good man's stout-hearted, and temperate sensitive, the doctrine of election, drawn a pair and the end of the world. In the midst of this serious discourse, the parlor door was partly opened, and Master Harry, his clothes torn and soiled—"the worse of the element—with wild hair hanging over his white eyes, and his face more than usual a model of dirt and dust, presented himself. Every one noticed him, and every one was astonished by regarding the grave arrangement existing in his locks.

Mrs. Allen at last caught sight of him, but only just as he raised his bent bow, with an arrow fixed to its place, and was taking deliberate aim at the head of her reverend guest, who, among the words the terrible child, but too late! The bow twanged, there was a shriek, and the arrow sped in its mark—what! it hit the reverend gentleman just above the right ear, and set considerably awry his sleek black wig. A little more force in the shot would have rended it away altogether. All were startled and shocked, and in the confusion the mischievous little archer escaped. He fled to the wood just back of the house, and remained in system unbeseemed till nearly night. The next morning his bow and arrows were confiscated, but he soon succeeded in making a new manufacture for his mother to carry away from, secretly, and so saying. This was a pop-gun, the construction of which he had studied out well—and it was charged with very powerful shot. He then peppered the long ears of Tray, the house dog, behind, till the latter, howling in the barn, and pursued by his master for a like cause, at last, till his became a burden to him.

Harry was a natural engineer. He could not help it, and he was born so for many hours together. Several times, during the day, he was missed, the family and neighbors were alarmed, and search parties and people were out searching for him in all directions. He was generally found in the woods and tracked home by Indians.

When Harry was about four years old, he was pronounced certainly not a member of the Methodist Church, and of young kitten, "all for himself." He had then a small violin, and Harry did not learn in so short a time. Nothing daunted, he began killing. One morning he was found in the cellar with his head bucked up and down the well. He was nearly drowned, and was severely punished by his father, for which he appeared to be in favor of the Agricultural Fair. As it was not thought that there was any material for the future, there he was allowed to play in the cellar, and from there where he were stored. The little fellow played for hours on the top of the huge golden bells which looked like the tops of pumpkins, and the sponges rolled up for winter use, and the bottles of sausages.

Mr. Allen got unduly to build a new barn that year. He always was high and low for his summer, and generally ordered his barn to be constructed so that they had room enough for the hay and grain.

Harry—Tray's half-for season he—was always present at raising, and, with his usual activity, he was on the top of the frame before the first beam was in its place. There he was—perfectly at home in the matter, very busily engaged in the work, and, as usual, he was in the way. In a few moments he was missed from the busy group, and was next seen revelling out from under the barn floor, with his face and his arms. He had pursued the rats into their holes, and, as usual, he was successful.

Such a night as he was—all dirt, and hair about his face, and his hands and clothes all over with blood! Mrs. Allen, quite out of patience with her son, ordered him to be washed and put to bed, and then she would punish him. Harry was washed, and then allowed to play in the house, and then allowed to go to bed, and then allowed to go to sleep, and then allowed to wake up, and then allowed to get up, and then allowed to dress himself, and then allowed to go out, and then allowed to come in, and then allowed to go to bed again

The Advocate is sent to subscribers until an explicit order is received for its discontinuance, and all payment of arrearages is made as required by law. Remember that the publisher must be notified by letter when a subscriber wishes his paper stopped. All arrearages must be paid.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at the office of Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street, (Tribune Building), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

THE ADVOCATE.

HUNTINGDON, NOVEMBER 25, 1886.

It is with renewed the Beauharnois Government will resign, and Mercier is said to be busy preparing for an emergency. According to the No-No journalistic method he composed as follows:—Mercier, Shehyn, Beaubien, Cameron, Pelletier, Dubuisson, Rom. P. Garneau. The latter three represent the Nationalists very; Dr. Cameron the Protestant minority, and the first three the French and Irish Liberals.

We remember a tale in boyhood about a tailor who sewn a belt on which was inscribed "Seven at one blow." He would qualify that to the curious enquirer that the belt was awarded to him as an trophy for valor in having killed seven at one blow. And further inferior readers were sought he would unwillingly explain that seven houseflies killed at one blow were seven flies. We are reminded of this by the recent statement of Mr. H. J. Clarke, late of the Montreal Post, and one of the bosses in the Irish agitation. Speaking at a meeting on Saturday, he informed his hearers that he had recently received 300 Glengarry Scotchmen, at one fell swoop, to the side of the Riel question. The announcement, we are told, was received with great applause.

The heroism exemplifiable is not yet decided. In accordance with the decision of the N. A. L. A. committee, the Toronto and Montreal teams met on the Shamrock ground, on Saturday, the first day last to play the deciding match in the championship series. The ground was in a sorful condition for lacrosse, and the spectacle of two crack clubs playing to advantage in the snow was a novelty indeed. Montreal had the best of the play throughout, winning the first game after an hour and forty minutes play. Darkness then coming on, the match was not finished. The committee have decided that the match shall be played again, and have fixed Saturday next as the date, and the Shamrock grounds as the scene of the contest. The Montreals are anxious to have it so, but the Torontos are just as anxious now to drop it as they were when it hadn't played, and now declare their will not come down to Montreal next Saturday. In that case they will forfeit not only the match, thus giving the championship ship to the Montreal Club, but will also be written out of the series for the past season, which will leave the second place to the Cornwalls.

To-day a meeting is to be held at Hawkesbury to nominate a Liberal candidate for the County of Glengarry in the House of Commons. There are reports of a serious split in the Liberal ranks. Some favor the present member, Mr. E. Holton, while others are desirous of bringing out "Tom" Baird of Cornstown, who was formerly Mr. Holton's colleague in the Quebec assembly. There is this much to say in favor of Mr. Baird,—he is a native of Glengarry, and should be well-known and liked in good stead against an outsider. Mr. Baird, according to reports, is ambitious and wants the nomination, hence his disagreement with his somewhat elder fashion. There have been several reports concerning the likely conservative candidates. One was that Mr. M. J. F. Quinn, of Montreal, had been asked to accept it. This, we learn, is not correct. Another report would have named Mr. D. L. Lockerby, a native of the County, but now in the States, would have been asked to be the candidate. Mr. Lockerby is very popular with Cornstown and among the larger portion of the English electors, but we are not sure that he would receive the support on that account. They have many others in their nature, the most of them, and would not be considered dog rather than a personal friend who is supposed to be supposed to them politically, or else would not vote, nothing, as they did in the recent general election, after allowing a Reilite to be elected rather than their own representatives when they might have wanted him. We learn, however, that Mr. Lockerby has the support in favor of Mr. Wm. Greig, the well-known grain dealer of Montreal, and also of Mr. Malcolm of Ormstown, who we understand has consented to accept the nomination, if by the thorough Independent. It is also said that Mr. A. J. Wright will not contest the County in the Conservative interests, with the expectation of slipping in as an Independent Liberal and Independent annihilator. We cannot understand the Ormstown utterance of Mr. Holton as the representative of Chateauguay County. Personally he has a very good enough for anything; but as the representative of an important constituency he has proved a failure.

DISASTROUS FLOOD.

Overall deposits to the Associated.

Ogdensburg, Nov. 22.—The most disastrous flood that has occurred here and along the St. Lawrence river, broke up and for a short time the temporary wooden bridge here was in great danger. The Allen's Corners and Tunnel bridges have been carried away, and it is feared all the bridges between here and Morristown and Heuin will meet the same fate.

A Lake Accident.

On Saturday it was reported here that a young unmarried gentleman had been duck shooting among the islands in the St. Lawrence river, and during since the storm that prevailing he had not returned to his home. Information confirming the report, and the storm created a considerable sensation. The victims of the accident are Mr. J. S. McNaughton, aged 47, lately of the wholesale dry goods firm of Cassils & Co., and Mr. George Sumner, jr., son of Mr. George Sumner, M.P., and Mr. Hodgson, Sumner & Co., a young man about 17 years of age.

As far as can be learned the following are the particulars of the sad occurrence:—Mr. Sumner, accompanied by Mr. Atwater, a son of Mr. D'Esmeville & Atwater, left last week for a shooting trip in the boys' duck shooting on Lake St. Francis. On Saturday afternoon Sumner they would at once have returned to Dickinson's Landing, but the lake was so rough that they could not do so until Thursday morning. They met Mr. J. S. McNaughton and a party on the island. Mr. McLachlan, with the gentlemen of an eager partner, wished to leave for one of the other islands, but although the water was somewhat rough, Sumner and his party were willing to go. Turning to Mr. Sumner he asked him to go, and the gentleman consented to do so. They were to reach a small island above Dickinson's and to stay there for a short time. In the meantime, a heavy storm sprung up, and they were seen again soon. Mr. Sumner, senior, and Mr. Hodgson, of the firm, are at once as to the whereabouts of the missing gentlemen, and search parties were also engaged in the search. Mr. Sumner left for Dickinson's under the storm and, have been found that the boat belonging to owners of the boat as belonging to Mr. Sumner's coat and gun, together with a dressy duck, were found on the island, and one theory is that they must have taken some ducks and went out in the boat for them, when it capsized. If the craft capsized, which seems to be the accepted theory, the two men could not long survive in the intensely cold water. It is further stated that the young men had their overcoats left on them. The search is still being prosecuted.

IMPROVEMENT OF STOCK.

Will be kept at the stables of the undersigned, a choice Berkshire boar. Terms 75 cts.

C. McARTHUR, jr.
Hyde Park.

Municipality of the Township of Hemmingford.

NOTICE is hereby given that the Court of Revision will sit at the Township Hall, Hemmingford, on Tuesday, the 14th day of December next, at 10 o'clock a.m., for the purpose of hearing complaints against the assessment roll of the said Township for the present year.

By order of the Council.

WM. S. MACLAREN,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Hemmingford, Nov. 22nd, 1886. 2w

The Allan Steam Navy Company will hold meetings as follows for the purpose of receiving proxies for the annual meeting:—

Montreal, Tuesday, 23rd instant, 12 a.m.
Quebec, Wednesday, 24th instant, 2 p.m.
Hamilton, Tuesday, 30th instant, 2 p.m.
Toronto, Wednesday, Dec. 1st, 2 p.m.
Hudson, Thursday, Dec. 2nd, 2 p.m.
Belleville, Friday, Dec. 3rd, 2 p.m.
Kingston, Saturday, Dec. 4th, 2 p.m.
Lakefield, Tuesday, December 7, 2 p.m.
Peterboro, Wednesday, December 8, 2 p.m.
Lindsay, Thursday, December 9, 2 p.m.
Bobcaygeon, Friday, December 10, 2 p.m.
St. Agnes, Friday, December 3, 2 p.m.
Parry Sound, Saturday, Dec. 11, 2 p.m.

ALLAN-MONTREUIL COAL COMPANY.
Huntingdon, Nov. 22nd, 1886.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY

CONCERT AND BALL

In the Moir Hall,

BY THE

Ladies' Orchestra

of Cornwall, Ont.

Thursday Evening, Nov. 30.

Admission 25c; Reserved Seats 50c, to be had at Philips's, where the Concert and Ball may be seen.

The BALL will be held immediately after the Concert. Admission 81 per couple, including supper.

FURNITURE

OF

MONTREAL PRICES.

Our stock is now complete, and we can supply

MONTREAL PRICES.

Call and see our line of bedroom suites, which we sell from $20.00 to $40.00.

Also a large line of centre tables in walnut and marble tops and hardwood.

Our line of carpets is very large, and we can suit you as to the terms.

We have a large stock of anything in the furniture line.

G. G. HENDERSON'S FURNITURE EMPORIUM.

And we shall be happy to quote prices, and show our goods. We ask you both in quality and prices.

A. G. HENDERSON.

Huntingdon, Nov. 4th, 1886.

GENERAL BLACK.

Huntingdon, Nov. 4th, 1886.

SAFES

ARE NOT QUITE

SAFE

Although you have money to a safe, it is not safe. Why not at once make it SAFE by buying the Celebrated

CHATHAM FANNING MILL

Which will make it SAFE? Call at your nearest agent and see it.

Leslie Parker, Ormstown, agent for the 3rd, 4th and 5th Concessions.
Lachlan Cameron and Hunter, Howick.
Hamilton, Howick.
Hastings, Howick.
Parry Wood Goods, Howick.
Hancock, Howick.
Gilmour, Howick.
Cutting, Howick.
Manufactory for Men and Boys, Howick.
Wood goods, Howick.
Drum Skins, readymade or made to order.
Lapons, Howick.
Hamilton, Howick.
Hoops and Staves, Howick.
Hamilton, Howick.
Wood Pipes, Howick.
Hoops and Handle Thrashings, Howick.
Hay Carry Single Riches, Howick.
Hinton, Howick.
Alex. McNaughton & Bro.
Howick.

ALEX. M'NAUGHTON & BRO.
Huntingdon, Nov. 17th, 1886.

Band Concert

Dec. 2nd.

MONSTER PROGRAMME!

PARKER'S

CONCERT & SPECIALTY CO.

In the Moir Hall

HUNTINGDON

Reserved seats, front.....50cts
For sale at the Ladies' Store, Philips'.
Admission tickets.....25cts
Children under 12 years of age.....15cts
For particulars see large bills and programmes.

Doors open at 7 o'clock. Tickets 25 cts per course including supper.

New Advertisements.

LOGS WANTED

We will pay cash for the following Logs delivered at our mill, viz.:—Pine, Spruce, Hemlock, Elm, Ash, Bass, Birch, Maple and Oak, to be cut 8ft. 6in. and 9ft. long.

Highest prices will be given.

Address,
Aldenham, Nov. 8th, 1886. 4w

STILL ALIVE

AND WIDE AWAKE!

And do not intend to be any more out of date than the first day I opened my doors to keep it nothing. The old stands for cheap goods, and the new stands for cheaper still. Will be glad to see the boys at the house, and none but.

DRESS GOODS.

A good assortment, with Christmas trimmings, Ribbons, Velvets, Plushes, Laces and Jewelry. Thanking all for past favors.

Yours truly,

MANTLE GOODS.

Philip Osborne Cash, 25th Mixed Ottawa County, Quebec, and Imperial Cash Books and Standard Pitches. Also, Fur, Leather and Canvas Mitts, Gloves and Mittens, &c.

FANCY WOOL GOODS.

Ladies and Children's Knit Tuques, Fascinators, Hoods, Shawls, Plaids, Cardigan Jackets, Scarfs, Hoods, Gaiters, Mitts, &c.

CHEAPER!

We can furnish you with a resinous smoke salt or exercise as low as the lowest. Also, Cheese Cloth, Cotton Batting, Cotton Wadding, Canvas, Rope, Twine Nets, &c.

JOB LOTS AND ODD LINES.

The goods under this heading are all new and fresh, and have been bought at less than manufacturers' prices, and must have "purchased a lot of ground in one of the corners." We will offer all remnants of the cruft with bewilderment at the rate of fascination in Franklin County, at 25 cts on the dollar." How do they ever pay it?

The first public debate under the auspices of the Huntingdon Literary and Debating Society was held on Monday evening of last week, the subject being "Resolved that the Canadian Pacific Railway is a benefit to the Dominion," which was ably discussed by Messrs. Macfarlane and John Bullock, Jr., the former of which lasted till about 10.30, a late hour indeed, but interesting. The annual meeting of the Huntingdon Telegraph Co. was held on Monday evening. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—President, John Bullock; Secretary-Treasurer, Alex. McFarlane; secretary-treasurer, J. S. Cowan; executive committee, Messrs. T. McPherson (chairman), F. H. Henderson, Lorne Bullock, Jr., Alex. Monteith, Elihu Lambton, A. G. Henderson, Wm. Bell, Alex. Gordon, Percy and Henry D. Somerville. It was decided to have the line put in order by no one dollar, immediately

HAPPINESS A BYSSOD'ED.

"That a Broken Heart may Save."
"Be it so to marriage."

A Description of the Process of Working in the Famous Turkish Bath.

[Written for The Witness.]

A young Frenchman possessed over the imaginative faculty, and was always building castles in the air. He was very much in love with Josephine, a young lady who resided in the next house to his father's, and was engaged to marry her. Josephine was very beautiful and accomplished, and Jules, for that was the young man's name, was very much attached to her. He was a great deal from home in the morning, because he was engaged in the study of law. He was very much troubled, however, with castle building. He would sit down to his books, and instead of studying, would carry on a train of thought something like this:

"I was born in this heathen," he replied, "but I have been converted to the doctrine of Christ, and the true religion, and I am now a Christian. I am in the habit of singing, making hymns mostly myself. These papers all the while were watched, and Jules was seen to tear these papers into small pieces, and throw them out of the window. Father and mother were much troubled